ACCESSORIES

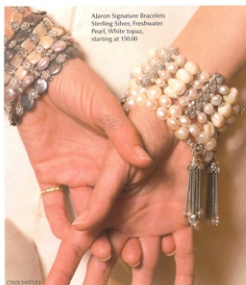

According to Jennifer Brisman, president of Jennifer Brisman Weddings New York, Manhattan's premier wedding planning firm, bridal style for Fall and Winter will evoke a more couture feeling than we have seen in previous seasons.

As gowns will take on a more fashion-forward look this Fall, so will bridal accessories. Brisman says this season "it's all about the jewel tones and all about the jewelry; not necessarily diamonds and pearls, but sapphires and semi-precious stones, which are more weighted and balanced for the couture looks we're seeing this Winter." Whether you accessorize with costume pieces, treasured antiques, borrowed baubles or fresh-out-of-the-case Cartier, there are enough options to fit every bride's budget. @

ADORN AND EMBELLISH WITH FALL 2007'S FASHION ACCESSORIES

BRACELETS

Thick silver and gold cuffs sprinkled with gemstones are ruling the fashion runways. Tiny rhinestones or beads add an air of daintiness to the chunky, semi-precious stones. Wide and antique is the look for brides walking down the aisle this fall with family heirlooms dooning their wrists for an old-fashioned, sentimental air.

FOR EARRINGS - BOLD IS BEAUTIFUL

Be bold this fall with the chandelier earrings. This dangling piece of jewelry boasts diamonds, pearls and even glass beads for a glamorous, Art-Deco look.

ENORMOUS NECKLACES

Bigger is better with dramatic necklaces dripping with gemstones and setting off demure necklines. Dramatic cascading pendants show-off two, three, or more linked-stones, and even classic chokers are emboldened with up to six strands of pearls.

THE CLASSICS

The classic stand-bys of delicate pendants, classic diamond studs, and bare wrists are always in style, so don't despair if the bold look in wedding jewelry isn't your taste. But for the up-to-the-minute bride who wants to reflect the latest look, big is definitely beautiful.
